EVANSVILLE, IN - Southwest Indiana Workforce invites you to attend the Local Elected Officials Breakfast and Meeting on April 25 from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. CST.

At the meeting, local elected officials will gather to hear Region 11's Jobs for America's Graduates (JAG) Students share success from the last year. Students will share how the JAG program impacts them personally and professionally. JAG Manager, Chrissy Ash says that these students prepare throughout the year for this event.

"In the classroom, JAG students build knowledge and practice skills. The Local Elected Officials Breakfast and Meeting provide platforms to unlock their potential and showcase their talents. These opportunities empower students to break barriers, build confidence, and shine," Ash shares.

Makenzie Coulter is the Global Vice President of Human Resources for Flanders. She says, "It is through hearing directly from the students, and learning about their experiences at the Career Development Conference, that the true impact of the program becomes clear. The JAG program not only imparts essential life skills but also provides invaluable life experiences that effectively prepare these students for success, both individually and as contributors to the future prosperity of our region."

Southwest Indiana Workforce looks forward to this event each year. It is an opportunity for the community to learn more about the JAG Program and how it is impacting the future generation of leaders.

SWIN Workforce Executive Director, Sara Worstell says, "This event is something our organization loves to plan. It's powerful to hear how the JAG program helps students through some of their most impressionable years and ensures they realize their full potential."
